

Luca Trevisani // The effort took its tools

Luca Trevisani's (*1979) beautiful, flamboyant book with its overlaid images, collages, and eccentric typography serves as an archive of his sources, reading and inspirations as well as a documentation of his recent works. "If Trevisani works quickly, it is the present-day condition that demands it; the awareness of being part of this constant flow of data, materials and images in transformation that does not permit the solid state. In the liquid modernity there is less and less space for definitive form: everything flows, really. It's only a short leap from Heraclitus to bytes." (Luca Cerizza) References include: Klaus Bach, Berthold Burkhardt, and Otto Frei, Jean Baudrillard, Alice Munro, Petra Blaisse, Marco Belpoliti, Bruno Munari, Peter Sloterdijk.
